Crain's

Health + Hospitals plans $7.2M pharmacy in Coney Island

By Ethan Geringer Sameth

New York City Health + Hospitals is planning a new $7.2 million pharmacy at South Brooklyn Health, a 351-bed teaching hospital in Coney Island.

Why it matters: The public health system filed plans with the state Department of Health on Monday to renovate 5,400 square feet of office and exam space on the first floor of the hospital. The new pharmacy, which will be open to patients and the general public, will be funded with cash and bond financing and is expected to take 16 months to complete, according to the filing.